To the Lawrence City Commission
March 9, 2004

The Lawrence Sesquicentennial Commission is pleased to recommend a name for the legacy area at Clinton Lake. After months of discussion and several public meetings of the commission, the Board of Directors on behalf of the entire commission made this recommendation at its meeting on February 25, 2004.

This name has also been endorsed by the Lawrence Parks and Recreation Advisory Board at its meeting on March 9, 2004.

We respectfully request the permission of the Lawrence City Commission to proceed with the name

Sesquicentennial Point

We will use this name in our printed materials to promote fundraising for the development of this site, and it will become the name on signage that will be placed at the bottom and the top of the hill. All signage will be designed and placed by Lawrence Parks and Recreation.

At our next meeting on March 31, 2004, we will caravan to the site at 4:45 p.m. from the Lawrence Public Library, so that all members of the Lawrence Sesquicentennial Commission will have another opportunity to see the legacy site and to match the reality of the space with the designs being done by Landplan Engineering. We cordially invite all of you to join us.

We seek your response to our request as soon as possible; we will be on your agenda with this request on March 16, 2004.

Sincerely,

Clenece Hills
