What are the chances of having a STOP sign reinstalled for west-bound traffic at 3rd and Locust street (the corner by the elevator in North Lawrence)? It is almost impossible to see west-bound traffic when you have crossed the Railroad tracks (south bound) and stopped at the STOP sign there, especially if a truck is parked at the elevator.

I know we can go to Lyon street and catch a traffic light at 2nd so it is safe to go through the railroad underpass. It is not safe to go for 2nd street on Lincoln as you cannot see the 40-mile per hour traffic coming north through the underpass.

It is too bad the railroad closed the 4th street crossing. You could see much better there than at 3rd street.
